Cheick Modibo Diarra
Chairman for Africa and Middle East
Microsoft
South Africa
South Africa

As the Chairman for Africa at Microsoft since April 2006, Dr. Diarra is responsible for the company's broad scale citizenship, education and developmental activities on the continent. In his view, 'Africa is one of the last frontiers where challenges and opportunities abound in the spheres of education, health, technology, production and infrastructure'. Born and raised in the small town of Niore du Sahel in Mali, West Africa, Dr. Diarra graduated from Pierre & Marie Curie University in Paris, France. He went on to attain his Ph.D. in mechanical and aerospace engineering from Howard University, Washington DC, USA. After six years as an Assistant Professor at Howard, Dr. Diarra joined the National Aeronautic and Space Association (NASA) Jet Propulsion Laboratory in 1998. As an interplanetary navigator, he oversaw five NASA missions, including the Magellan mission to Venus, the Ulysses mission to the poles of the Sun, the Galileo mission to Jupiter and the Mars Observer mission. He then served as the navigator and public outreach manager for the Mars Pathfinder mission. In 1999, in his personal capacity, Dr. Diarra created the Pathfinder Foundation for Education and Development – an organisation that encourages and supports female students in their pursuit of scientific education. To date, through Pathfinder and the associated Summer Camps of Excellence in Science, many young African female graduates have gone on to study scientific disciplines at some of the world's foremost universities. In 2002, Dr. Diarra was appointed as CEO of the African Virtual University (AVU) – a project that quickly grew into an organisation offering internationally-recognised undergraduate science and business degrees (and other academic courses) to students in 27 countries in Africa for a fraction of the traditional cost. In late 2003, Dr. Diarra returned home to Mali and, driven by a curious mind, began working on his farm to find solutions to the continent's challenges with food security and nutrition. Two years later, he was approached by Microsoft and, ultimately, the company's Chairman, Bill Gates, to take on the Africa Chairman role. Dr. Diarra is UNESCO's Goodwill Ambassador for Science, Technology and Enterprise; the Vice-President of the UN's World Commission on the Ethics of Scientific Knowledge and Technology; a member of the Independent Commission on Africa and the Millennium; a member of the High Level African Panel on Biotechnology; the Founder and President of the African Summit on Science and New Technologies (SASNET); and the Commandeur de l'Ordre for National Education in Gabon and Commandeur de l'Ordre du Merite du Lion in Senegal. Dr. Diarra has been awarded the African Lifetime Achievement Award, the World Bank's Award for Outstanding Contributions to Science, and the Africa-America Institute Award for Excellence in Science (for inspiring youth worldwide to explore the cosmos). He was also voted one of the 100 Africans of the 21st Century by Jeune Afrique.

Marco Ferroni, a former executive at the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) in Washington DC, has extensive management and operational experience in government and multilateral institutions. He has designed, negotiated and implemented many operational programs in developing and middle-income countries and combines managerial, analytical and interpersonal skills with a recognized ability to lead and motivate, form partnerships, and mobilize resources. As the Deputy Manager of the Sustainable Development Department of the IDB until July 2007, Mr. Ferroni had responsibility for the development of regional sector policy and technical project support to the Bank's country departments. He made contributions to knowledge management and led economic and sector work with a particular focus on sustainability issues (economic, social, governance, competitiveness and environmental). Prior to this assignment, Mr. Ferroni was the IDB's principal evaluation officer in the Bank's independent Office of Evaluation and Oversight. In this capacity he directed numerous evaluation studies that assessed the relevance, performance, and results of Bank strategies, policies, instruments, and country programs while working with Bank management, the Board of Executive Directors and borrowing countries to build learning communities, explain evaluation results, and strengthen the demand and authorizing environment for independent evaluation. Earlier in his career, Mr. Ferroni was a senior advisor to the World Bank's Vice Presidency for Resource Mobilization and Co-financing (now the Concessional Finance and Global Partnerships Vice Presidency), a member of the Boards of Executive Directors of the IDB and the Inter-American Investment Corporation representing European constituencies, and an economist, program manager and division chief at the Ministries of Public Economy and Foreign Affairs in Switzerland. At the World Bank, Mr. Ferroni spearheaded work on global/international public goods, advising the Bank on this then emerging topic and the implications for donors and foreign aid. Working for the Swiss Government, Mr. Ferroni (among many other responsibilities) managed balance-of-payments support to developing countries and conducted operations of a bilateral debt reduction facility that sought to lower bilateral external debt obligations of eligible low-income debtors and brought Swiss position on eligible Paris Club debt to de minimis status for these countries. Mr. Ferroni holds a doctoral degree in agricultural economics from Cornell University. He has worked in Latin America and Africa and has published and lectures frequently on foreign aid, debt and development finance, international public goods, social protection and the Millennium Development Goals, and sustainability challenges in open economies in the context of globalization. Marco Ferroni is a Swiss national. He is married to Ann Ferroni-Strattner, a US citizen. The couple have two children aged 20 and 25.

Karim Ghellab
Minister of Equipment and Transport
Morocco

Born on December 14, 1966 in Casablanca where he was educated, he obtained a Baccalaureate E (math/techniques) from the Lyautey College in 1984. Mr. Ghellab is a qualified Civil Engineer from the National School of Ponts et Chaussées of Paris, promotion 1990. Polyglot, he speaks fluently English, French, Italian and Arabic. He started his professional career in a Cabinet of Consultants in Paris, before joining in 1994 the Ministry of Equipment as a Provincial Director initially in El Hoceima and then Benslimane. He distinguished himself very quickly and integrated the central administration to deal with the Management of the Programs and Studies in 1996, then of the Roads and the Road traffic in 1998. In 2001, after working for a short period at the ONA Group, he was nominated by His Majesty the King Director General of ONCF where he successfully regulated the structural problems of the Office, repositioning it strongly on the market of national transport as a powerful logistical operator, a privileged partner of the national economy. On November 7, 2002, he was nominated by His Majesty the King Minister of Equipment and Transport within the Government of Driss Jettou, one of the strategic portfolios, in charge of the management and the follow-up of the largest projects in the country. As the head of this department, he strongly pushed for reforms and acceleration of projects. As a result, he gained great visibility by realizing and delivering physical building sites (rural roads: from 1000 to 1500 Km/year and motorways: from 40 to 100, then to 160 Km/year), modernization and major changes in the legal environment of various sectors (application of the law on the liberalization of the transport of goods, of the air, railway and maritime transport, transformation of the offices into limited companies, ONT/ONCF and ODEP, reform of the highway code, preparation and implementation of the national strategy of road safety). Mr. Ghellab is a member of the Central Committee of the Istiqlal Party. Leader of the party in the district of Sbata in Casablanca in September 2003, he won the local elections. He became President of the district and a member of the Town council of Casablanca. He is also a provincial secretary of the party for the province of Ben Msik, a province which gathers some of the largest popular districts of Casablanca. Candidate during the legislative elections in September 2007, he won a seat and became a member of the Parliament of Ben Msik. He is married and father of a little boy.

Abdoulie Janneh
Secretary General
Economic Commission for Africa
Ethiopia

Mr. Abdoulie Janneh (Gambia) is Under-Secretary-General and Executive Secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa (ECA). ECA is the regional arm of the United Nations in Africa. Since Mr. Janneh joined ECA, he has taken steps to strategically re-position the organization to better support Africa's development agenda. He has also overseen the articulation of the ECA Business Plan 2007 – 2009 to operationalize the new strategic vision. Before joining ECA, Mr. Janneh served as Assistant Secretary-General and UNDP Regional Director for Africa from June 2000 to October 2005. In that capacity, he managed United Nations Development Programme's (UNDP) largest Regional Bureau, covering 45 countries in sub-Saharan Africa with a complement of over 1,500 staff. Prior to that, he held a number of senior positions in UNDP and its affiliated funds, including Resident Coordinator and Resident Representative in Ghana (1996-1999) and Niger (1993-1996), as well as Deputy Executive Secretary of the United Nations Capital Development Fund (1990-1993). As a senior UN manager, Mr. Janneh has been a strong advocate for development efforts that respond effectively to Africa's national and regional priorities. Under his leadership, ECA has taken significant steps to support African countries in the area of regional integration, poverty eradication, trade, financing for development, ICTs, governance, climate change, the fight against HIV/AIDS, and natural resources management. Mr. Janneh remains particularly interested in the institutional transformation of the African Union and the successful implementation of the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD), including the Africa Peer Review Mechanism (APRM), as critical initiatives for achieving the Millennium Development Goals. Mr. Janneh has been striving to enhance partnership-building for Africa, as a necessary vehicle to mobilize support and build inclusiveness for shared development objectives. In this regard, he has been able to cultivate strong partnerships at the highest levels between ECA and governments, the private sector, civil society, as well as national, regional and international organizations. He also serves on the advisory panels of a number of organizations involved in Africa's development and has delivered over the years a number of keynote addresses, policy statements and written articles on issues germane to Africa's development.

Roger Kamgaing decided to start his professional career in Cameroon in early 1991. During a period of 5 years, he held top managerial positions in several enterprises of a significant size in the Cameroonian environment. First he successfully managed a 150 rooms 3 stars hotels employing that was going through a critical period and needed to be "rescued" from what seemed to be an ineluctable bankruptcy. Roger also started a new business of importation and distribution of commodities in Cameroon and neighbouring countries. Eventually, Roger also got involved in real estate to manage his family's asset in Cameroon. In 1996, at the age of 30, Roger felt the need to pursue other aggressive challenges and decided to leave Cameroon. In August 1996, he started his career within SGS Group, by a period of 3 months in Peru to familiarize with SGS activities. Roger previous professional achievements allowed him to have a good knowledge of Trade in Africa, of Trade practices and of Traders needs in developing countries. Additionally, SGS was proposing opportunities and exciting (long term) challenges. For these reasons and despite the fact that he was starting something totally new, Roger accepted the position of Regional Marketing Manager responsible for SGS Government services activities in Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania. After several years in promoting SGS services, Roger energy and capacity to satisfy the needs of very demanding clients where recognised by the Group and his direct Management. Steadily Roger took more and more responsibility to become after 10 years within the Group, a SGS Group Vice President in charge of the Global (worldwide) promotion and marketing of services to Government, managing a group of 7 very skilled professionals based in Europe (Geneva), Latin America, Asia and Africa.

Kevin Leo-Smith
 Managing Director,
 Sustainable Forestry
 Management Africa
 South Africa

Born in 1956 in Zambia but grew up in Durban South Africa, where I completed high school. Then moved to a farm near Pietermaritzburg where I attended University of KwaZulu Natal and completed a BSc. Agriculture in 1978. Completed 2 years military service which included 1 year working with rural communities teaching them modern agricultural practices. Commenced farming on a new family farm in 1980 doing dairy, irrigated crops, cattle and game ranching. This farm was on 671ha and from this base started into agri-business setting up Agri-Plan Estates a specialist farm sales consultancy. This business developed rapidly to become the leading agency in the KwaZulu Natal midlands. I subsequently set up several other agri-businesses including Beef Crop, Plan Group, Irri-Plan and a specialist magazine Livestock Farming./Veeboerdery. As a result of the rapid development of game ranching Agri-Plan developed a proposal for using degraded farm land to link two large game reserves in Zululand together through private conservation land. This private reserve became known as Phinda Resource Reserve. This large and pioneering project led to the development of Conservation Corporation Africa (CCAfrica) with partners including Trevor Coppen, Alan Bernstein and Dave Varty. This project led to me selling my other businesses and moving onto the Reserve to manage the implementation of Phinda. In 1994 I left CCAfrica which had then grown to 2000 staff and operations in 4 countries in Africa. I then spent 2 years consulting in ecotourism development and agri-business developments while looking for another suitable eco-tourism project. During this time I consulted for a number of conservation projects including the now successful Niassa Game Reserve in Mozambique which is an over 3 million hectare reserve that was basically abandoned at the time. In 1997 I linked up with a Botswana citizen who had a 232 000ha concession in Northern Botswana to initiate Kwando Safaris which I ran until early 2006 developing it into a business with 5 luxury camps and 7 airplanes to link guests to the camps. By the time I left, over a commercial dispute with my partner in 2006 it was a very successful business with very high occupancies. I subsequently linked up again with Alan Bernstein, who is CEO of Sustainable Forestry Management, to start up SFM Africa Ltd. based out of Johannesburg. This is the role I currently fulfill. In this role I am responsible for the development of environmental rights based business throughout Africa primarily focused on climate change mitigation through conservation forestry.

Education:

1974-1978 B.Sc. Agric, University of Natal Pietermaritzburg
 1982-1997 Licensed with Estate Agents Board, Johannesburg

Former President of Tanzania; Member, Blair
Commission for Africa
Tanzania

Benjamin W. Mkapa, a seasoned journalist, diplomat and politician, was elected President of Tanzania in November 1995. He is the third President of the United Republic of Tanzania since independence in 1961. President Mkapa was born in 1938 in Masasi, in the Mtwara region of the country. He received his primary and secondary education in Tanzania, and continued his studies at Makerere University College in Uganda, obtaining a Bachelor of Arts degree in English (with honours) in 1962.

President Mkapa's career began in local administration in Dodoma where he was appointed District Officer in 1962. He became a Foreign Service Officer later that year. In 1966 Mr. Mkapa embarked upon a long career in journalism. During the 1960s and 70s he served as Managing Editor of Tanzania's leading newspapers, The Nationalist, Uhuru, The Daily News, and The Sunday News.

His experience in the news media led to his being appointed, in 1974, as Press Secretary to the then President of Tanzania, Mwalimu Julius Kambarage Nyerere, whom he served for two years. In 1976, Mr. Mkapa became the Founding Editor of the Tanzania News Agency (SHIHATA). He also became Minister for Information and Culture in 1980-82; and again Minister for Information and Broadcasting in 1990-92.

President Mkapa's equally long diplomatic career included a number of high postings, including High Commissioner to Nigeria (in 1976) and Minister for Foreign Affairs (from 1977 to 1980). In 1982, he served as High Commissioner to Canada and between 1983 and 1984 as Ambassador to the United States of America. He returned home in 1984 where he was again appointed Member of Parliament and Minister for Foreign Affairs. In 1992, he served as Minister for Science, Technology and Higher Education, prior to being elected President in 1995, and Chairman of his Party, Chama Cha Mapinduzi, in 1996. He was re-elected President in 2000 for another 5 year term. Throughout his political career, President Mkapa has worked to strengthen Tanzanian democracy, entrench civil rights and fight poverty, while increasing the country's exposure to international trade and investment. He is active in conflict prevention, management and resolution in the Great Lakes Region of Africa, and is an active player in regional economic co-operation within the East African Community, and the Southern African Development Community of which he was Chairperson for 2003/2004.

In January 2002, President Mkapa was appointed, together with the President of Finland, Co-Chair of the World Commission on the Social Dimension of Globalisation. In March 2004, he was appointed to serve as a Commissioner in the Commission for Africa established by British Prime Minister, Tony Blair. In 21st December 2005, President Mkapa relinquishes powers voluntarily after the end of his two terms in office as a president of United Republic of Tanzania. He will continue to be the Chairman of the ruling party CCM until June 2006, when he will hand the chairmanship to his successor, President Jakaya Mrisho Kikwete.

President Mkapa continues to serve in a number of international engagements, among them, he is Co-Chair of the Investment Climate Facility for Africa, an initiative supported by British Government, European Union, World Bank and Multinationals corporations. He is the current Chairman (2006-...) of the South Centre, an intergovernmental organization which fight for the issue of paramount importance for developing countries, including China and the Chairperson for the Emerging Markets Forum (African Region). He was a member of Panel of Eminent Persons appointed by the UNCTAD Secretary General (2005) to review and enhance the role of UNCTAD within the United Nations reforms. He was also a member of the panel appointed by United Nations General Secretary in 2006, to review the United Nations Reforms on the system wide coherence in environment, humanitarian assistance and development. Currently, he is serving in a board of trustees for African wildlife foundation, and High Level Panel of legal empowerment of the Poor. President Mkapa holds four honorary doctorate degrees from Soka University in Japan (1998), Morehouse College, Atlanta, USA (1999), the Open University of Tanzania (2003) and the National University of Lesotho (2005)., University of Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania (2006) and Newcastle University, United Kingdom (2007)

His first book in the series, Uwazi na Ukweli: Rais wa Watu Azungumza na Wananchi (Truth and Transparency: The People's President Talks to the People) was published by Mkuki na Nyota Publishers, Dar es Salaam in 2003. The second book in the series was published by the same publisher in 2005.

Bridget Radebe

Chief Executive Officer
Mmakau Mining (Pty) Ltd
South Africa

Bridgette was born into an entrepreneurial family during the apartheid era. Seeing her parents having to fight oppressive rules against black business created the foundation for the spirit of economic activism that drives her. As a teenager in 1976, she decided to become a mining lawyer, in response to the injustices of the exploitation of her tribe's mineral rights and non-payment of royalties. But despite being accepted as a student in mining law at Wits University, her race prohibited her from studying there. Bridgette's business experience has encompassed business development and mergers and acquisitions worldwide. She became the first black South African deep level hard rock mining entrepreneur in the late 1980's, despite circumstances that forbade her access to the industry on the grounds of both her gender and her race. She is founder and executive chairperson of Mmakau Mining, which currently has equity in platinum mines, coal, chrome and gold as well as mining services through Shaft Sinkers, a company that specialises in shaft sinking, mining construction and development. The company also has expertise in exploration. Through her leadership, Mmakau's prime focus is on investment in sustainable mining ventures through community-driven involvement, which provides for wealth creation through empowerment procurement practices, managed empowerment partnering, skills and entrepreneur development. Bridgette is president of the South African Mining Development Association (SAMDA – the Junior Mining Chamber) and vice chairman of the Minerals and Mining Development Board that advises the Minister of Minerals and Energy. In recognition of her contribution, she was given the "Pioneer in Mining" Award by the SA Ministry of Minerals and Energy in 2000. She participated in the design of the Charter and present mining legislation. She is also a founder and board of trustee member of the New Africa Mining Fund and she currently serves on the SAPPI board and other boards.
